Quote of the Week

“It is the fellowship of the Cross to experience the burden of the other. If one does not experience it, the fellowship he belongs to is not Christian. If any member refuses to bear that burden, he denies the law of Christ

—Dietrich Bonhoeffer

SPOTLIGHT ON...

Hunger and Homeless

This week across the nation communities are acknowledging a national crisis: Hunger and Homelessness. To some it may seem that these issues are unrelated; what do bellies have to do with beds? Two leading factors contributing to homelessness over the past 25 years are an increase in poverty levels and a lack of affordable housing. Homelessness is caused by all sorts of problems such as job loss, addiction, domestic abuse, foreclosure and mental illness and includes all sorts of demographics from adults to children, from veterans to immigrants. Imagine the streets full of hungry people that have slept in the cold. Would they be angry seeing the satiated of us vacantly acknowledging their existence? As Christians, we can read a very stark call in Matthew 25 in which our very response to the hungry and the homeless dictates our salvation. This week we hope to answer some of the questions and dilemmas that come up when considering the "least among us."

Service Program of the Week:

Christmas on Campus is a hallmark event symbolizing the Catholic and Marianist tradition of the University of Dayton. The tradition of celebrating Christmas and the Feast of the Immaculate Conception dates back to 1964 when a group of students gathered and decided they wanted to celebrate Christmas before they left for the holidays. With that, Christmas on Campus was born. Since then, it has evolved into the night of magic and wonder that we know today.

Christmas on Campus 2009 will be held on December 8th and the theme is, "All is Bright." There will be over one thousand 1st and 2nd graders from the Dayton area on campus to celebrate with the UD community. If you are interested in helping with this year's event, please contact us at coc@notes.udayton.edu.
